Join us for our national conference, Educating the New Student Majority: Collaboration and Innovation for Persistence and Completion, to be held at the Omni Austin Hotel at Southpark in Austin, TX.

All organizations, institutions of higher education, access agencies, researchers, academics, and others committed to increasing college graduation rates among those underrepresented in higher education are invited.

Together we will share and learn strategies for successfully implementing change to increase college-degree attainment for low-income and other underrepresented students. There will be a special interest in and focus on cross-institutional collaborations for scalable change and evidence-based practices and policies that are making a difference in recruitment, enrollment, persistence and completion.

Formats include panel presentations, collaboration snapshot presentations, innovation showcases, and roundtable discussions.

To date, keynote speakers include Wil Del Pilar, Vice President for Higher Education Policy, Practice, and Research, The Education Trust, Uri Treisman, Executive Director of The Charles Dana Center at the University of Texas, Austin; and Mamie Voight, Vice President of Policy Research, Institute for Higher Education Policy.

A Funder's Panel will include representatives from The Kresge Foundation, The Teagle Foundation, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and the Greater Texas Foundation.

Registration fees for the conference include two breakfasts, two lunches, one dinner and two receptions.
